Name: _____

The Unteachables: A Different Point of View

The Unteachables by Gordon Korman is told from many different points of view. Most of the characters in the book get at least one chapter to tell their side of the story. However, we never hear directly from Elaine or Miss Fountain. Choose one of these two characters, and write a scene from their point of view.