

Hazel Ellis moves home to her First Nation reserve after losing her father. Dealing with both familial and community grief, Hazel's dreams are disturbed by her trickster kin, Nanabush, in the form of a crow.

As Hazel begins to understand the mystery of her family's connection with a local quarry, the crow is a constant companion on her journey toward truth. The real world and Hazel's dream world connect as she uncovers new facts and truth in both realms.
